

A system and method for adaptive transmission of information is disclosed. An end-user may control the amount of image information received at review station. The user receives frames of images until certain information is identified. The user may request to receive more detailed information based on the identified information.